

Chief Human Resources Officer

Joe Angelo

Joe Angelo was appointed Chief Human Resources Officer in August 2012. As the Chief Human Resources Officer, he is responsible for all aspects of Human Resources including Employee Benefits, Classification & Compensation, Employee Relations, Municipal Integrity, Recruitment, Affirmative action, Equal Employment Opportunities, Employee Development & Training, Testing, and Risk management.

Prior to this appointment, he served as the Interim Director of Animal Care Services from September 2011 – August 2012. As the Interim Director, he was responsible for advancing the three key objectives detailed in the 2011 ACS Strategic Plan: Enhanced Enforcement, Improved Animal Population Control, and Increased Live Releases. Prior to accepting the position of Interim Director, Mr. Angelo served as the City's Assistant Director for the Office of Innovation and Reform. There he led a team that served as the City's consultants in creating process improvements, and operational efficiencies. Though he spent the majority of his career in the private sector, he recently served as the managing Director of a nonprofit.

Education

- Bachelor of Business Administration - Dual undergraduate degrees, Drexel University and the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania
- Master in Business Administration , University of Miami
- Master in Public Administration , John F. Kennedy School at Harvard University

Personal

Joe enjoys running, reading and listening to music.